A large black and white photograph that serves as the background for the title. It shows a woman in a dark hat looking down, similar to the top image. In the foreground, the back of another person's head and shoulders is visible, suggesting a close interaction or a scene from the play.

Kindertransport

is the story of nine year old Eva who was evacuated from Nazi Germany in 1938, one of ten thousand Jewish children transported to new lives, new families. In the next few years, many of their parents will be transported to their deaths.

Moving in time as well as distance, the play's focus changes constantly; loss and gain, death and life, old and new identity.

The setting is the jumbled attic of a London home where uncomfortable secrets are discovered and brought into the open by Eva's daughter Faith. The Ratcatcher, who represents officialdom, the power of the uniform, is also the fairy tale Pied Piper who steals children from their parents.
